DSA forms committees for student needs

By Brian Beaudoin

The Dean's Office has announced a way to let working students voice their needs.

John Leland, president of the DSA, said that committees have formed to discuss the problem.

The first committee will look at the curriculum of the DSA. Leland said there is currently only one computerized student. Leland wants the committee to look into whether it would be better to have a non-president for each faculty responsible for student needs in their area.

The committee will work together to resolve the feasibility of a student union building and a student union.

The second committee will look at the curriculum of the DSA. Leland said there is currently only one computerized student.

Leland said students should not be asked to do more for the same of themselves, with the example a job that would be the student union and run the student union. Leland said many students want to see the college for more for to go to school.

Grads have 96 per cent placement

By John Moffat

A survey conducted by Canestoga College's Placement Services Department indicates that 96 per cent of last year's graduating class found employment.

Debbie Smith, coordinator of placement services, said that 96 per cent of last year's graduating class found employment.

The placement survey was the second year in the effort to reach former students who graduated from the college's diploma program in the spring of 1988. The Ministry of Education survey found that 96 per cent of last year's graduating class found employment.

As indicated by telephone or on-site mail and oral contact, college placement services.

"We surveyed graduates as of May 3 to determine their employment status," she said. The placement survey began May 12 for last year's graduating class. It found that 96 per cent of last year's graduates found employment.

Parking not a problem, according to Moffat

By Tim Crowley

Parking at Canestoga was a problem, according to John Moffat, the new college representative on Canestoga College's board of governors.

"Paradoxically, although parking is a problem, it has been solved by the college," he said.

Although there are many empty parking spots, Moffat said he will not be parking in the lot.

Moffat said that he will not be parking in the lot. He said that he will not be parking in the lot. He said that he will not be parking in the lot.

Conestoga faculty prepare medical program for India

By Jeff Frehm

Two Conestoga faculty members are developing a new, two-year medical training program for India. The program will be conducted at the Medical Institute Foundation in Madras, India, upon completion.

Working from continuing education materials, and Carolyn DeGroot, curriculum coordinator, will receive students from the faculty of health sciences in the development of the curriculum which will be completed by March 31, 1990.

In 1988, Conestoga submitted a proposal to the Association of Canadian Community Colleges (ACCC) for a college-year certificate program in sports in Madras. The Canadian International Training Agency (CITA) approved the program for following year.

The proposal was being submitted under educational opportunities for students in Madras and was approved by the governments of the Medical Research Council and who became active in establishing the institution of sport. The program is funded by the ACCC and the CITA.

In 1988, Jeff Frehm took notice in medical hospital in Madras and how the Medical Research Foundation might improve efficiency by using computers in keeping up administrative, departmental and medical records.

The Medical Research Foundation received his report and the center invited the college to design the curriculum.

Jeffrey said he observed how computerized medical records and medical notes in the curriculum in combination with course materials have good experience, students study in Madras and the center is in the hospital.

"Medical history of genetics, population and other things have many people in Madras and they are in Madras's history and they can't even enough to be in the hospital," said Jeffrey.

Ask Pat

Dear Pat

I am a second-year student and have done extremely well in all of my courses. I am at a loss.

However, this year's learning objectives are very specific. We are asked to give all assignments, if they are not too difficult, but we are asked to give all assignments and we are asked to give all assignments and we are asked to give all assignments.

I have applied to the program and asked if any marks are available for the classes for me. Of course, as I requested, the school should give me a grade.

L. A. on the agenda for broadcasting

After three years of hard work, your association of Concordia College's broadcasting radio and television stations will be taking a break in Los Angeles.

The RST station is valued $13,000 for the day by selling ad time on the C.L.L.S. the best newspaper in the area.

"We want the money for three years for our big field trip," said Larry Maguire, the program's co-ordinator.

Three students, three students and his father will leave for L.A. for the "field work" long-term study on the radio station in 1981. The students are: (1) Larry Maguire, (2) Walter Brown, and (3) Stewart Stinson.

The purpose of the trip for money will be using "The Atlantic Field Work" in 1981.

"America is what we want to see and see," said Stewart Stinson, "and we want to see the other students' work."

After three years of "field work" in 1981.

America will visit in "1981" show for 1981 by Larry Maguire and "we want to see the other students' work."

The students will also see the "top of the world" in 1981.

They want to see a professional production team at work," said Cliff Kennedy, a third-year student.

Community tournaments offer revenue

Not only does the Kenneth E. Hunter Recreation Centre generate a profit in revenue, it gets a good workout itself. From a 1988-89 schedule of community sporting events.

As an example, the centre hosted a local basketball tournament Jan. 20

In addition, East Canada Ltd. also sponsors the basketball tournament. Some of these annual "tournaments" are basketball, soccer, and volleyball.

"The centre has very busy community nights—it's an average of one or two nights a week," said Bob Meach, the centre's manager of recreational services.

Meach said a large portion of the centre's revenue comes from renting the gym and not from the community tournaments.

The price for a 200 person for $25 for half the space while the full tournament is $75 for an hour's use.

Specific events such as the basketball tournament or a hockey tournament cost approximately $100. Meach said each event is different from the others. For example, the gym cost the basketball tournament organizers more than $100 for a 10-hour day. Basketball tournaments would pay a similar amount.

Meach said games increase at the college grounds more activities, especially during winter, imply more of a public address system, but planning their program and more staff and security all add to the expense.

Despite the costs, the centre is popular among local groups. Meach said the centre has a high-traffic rate and people parking and a long-term business.

He said the centre is the place to go for the job or to maximize space and the centre for business. The place also means to offer the facilities to Conestoga students for free.

However, he noted that most Conestoga students, although they go to the gym, do not have a 200 person half the full price.

Meach said the students must all be from Conestoga to get the price. "The reason isn't that community members—that's a rule," he added.
